

Data migrations inherently come with a need for overall orchestration and risk management. Our Import Team helps ensure that the transition of your subscriber information into Recurly meets PCI standards and proceeds smoothly with minimal impact to your existing customers. Recurly's Enablement Team has extensive experience in subscription commerce and recurring billing best practices, and our work with a wide variety of business types has given us expert knowledge in different verticals. The team also brings a deep and detailed understanding of the Recurly platform. These factors combined enable us to offer a seamless import experience with minimal PCI risk.

We offer two types of PCI-compliant data transfers from a variety of sources to match your transition needs. All of our services are fixed-price and outcome-focused to ensure your business is up and running quickly with Recurly.

Account and Billing Info Imports

Appropriate for businesses that need to move existing accounts and their associated billing details into Recurly. Recurly's Import Team facilitates the secure transfer of billing data from your legacy platform, and mitigates PCI compliance risks associated with the storage of billing data. Recurly provides business guidance and technical expertise to manage the process from start to finish.

Subscription Imports

Best for businesses that would like to outsource the migration of their existing subscriber base. In addition to migrating customer account and billing data, Recurly's Import Team facilitates the transfer of subscriptions into the Recurly platform. This allows you to focus your development resources on the integration while Recurly moves your most important data in a way that's transparent to your subscriber base.
